THIRTY DAYS' CAMP FOR YOUNG MEN WHO CAN'T GO TO GRETNA

Officers of Howitzer Company Authorized to Receive Applications.

REQUIREMENTS ARE FEW

Limited to Good Character, Average Intelligence and Good Health; Local Units Busy Preparing for Camp; Absence from Drill Is Desertion.

A number of young men of the city and vicinity who had hoped to enroll as members of the Howitzer Company of the 110th Infantry, Pennsylvania National Guard, in time to participate in the annual encampment at Mount Gretna, beginning on Saturday, July 9, but have been disappointed because the company roster is completely filled, will have an opportunity to receive 30 days' training at the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Camp Meade, Md.

A communication was received by the officers of the Howitzer Company this morning from the headquarters of the Third Corps Area, United States Army, Fort Howard, Md., authorizing the recruiting or acceptance of applications by young men between the ages of 18 and 25 for the training period beginning August 1. The only requirements are that the applicants be men of good character, average intelligence and physically sound. Previous military training is not necessary to secure admission to the camp. Transportation to and from the camp will be provided, also quarters, uniforms and subsistence while in camp. No pay is allowed for attendance.

Applications can be made through Captain George Bewick, Jr., and First Lieutenant Reigh A. Marietta of the Howitzer Company, for which purpose the armory will be open every evening until Friday of this week when the local organization will leave for Mount Gretna. Physical examinations of applicants will be made without charge by Captain J. L. Junk, medical officer.

During the past few days there have been many more applications for enlistment in the Howitzer Company than could be accepted, the authorized strength of the unit having been reached and a dozen or more eligibles placed on the waiting list. The last young men to be accepted were Lloyd Brendell, Francis Murray and William Beatty. Enlistments now being subject to approval by a council of officers considerably more care is being taken in the choice of men. The result is that the personnel of the present outfit is of an exceptionally high order. The roster now contains the names of 71 enlisted men.

Under regulations recently promulgated the matter of absence from drill has become a much more serious matter than formerly. Now enlisted men who persist in the practice will be dropped from the rolls of the company and the charge of desertion entered against them. They will thus be given practically the same status as deserters from the draft or the Regular army, and the charge will stand against them until they have brought themselves under the proper military authority.

There will be much activity at the armory this week in preparation for camp. All the federal property issued to Company D will be packed and taken to camp, in addition to the new property issued to the Howitzer Company. It will require two baggage cars to transport the material. Additional howitzers and mortars have been shipped to complete the equipment of the company, but they have not yet arrived. The mounts for the organization will be issued at camp.

Wheeler Man Found Dead With Bullet Hole Over Heart

Although no motive for suicide could be attached to the death, Wesley Baer, 38 years old, of Wheeler, was found dead in his barn there about 11 o'clock last night with a bullet wound two inches above the heart and a .32 calibre revolver by his side. The fact that he had been dead for several hours led the police to believe he had killed himself soon after he left the house.

The police were called and Patrolman Bert Ritchie answered the call. He brought the dead man to this city and the body was taken to the funeral parlors of C. C. Mitchell. Coroner S. H. Baum was notified but no time has been set for the inquest.

Fayette County On First Model National Airway

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—A system of model airways covering the entire continent is planned by the army air service for use of all operators or owners of air craft. It contemplates chains of well organized landing fields supplemented by emergency fields and identification markers connecting the principal cities.

Because of the lack of appropriation by the federal government it is the purpose of the air officials to appeal to chambers of commerce, aerial clubs and civic organizations to assist in the location of airways. The Boy Scouts already have pledged their cooperation and will construct identification markers, guard wrecked planes, submit monthly reports on emergency landing field conditions and generally assist aviators in trouble.

The plan calls for the first of the model airways between Washington and Dayton, O., with five main stations, 10 subsidiary stations and 30 emergency fields. Among them will be Morgantown, W. Va., Cumberland, Frostburg and Oakland, Md., Point Marion, Smithfield and Waynesburg, Pa.

Each main station will be provided with a municipal landing field, wireless and telephone equipment and a station which will forecast weather conditions and wind direction and disseminate such information to fliers along the route.

HUNDRED DEGREES IN SHADE, FOURTH RECORD FOR HEAT

Highest Temperature in Any Summer Known Here Is Registered.

The heat yesterday set a new high mark for this year and in fact for the past 10 years, or as far back as the official records extend. The thermometer on the West Penn building, which is regarded as the "official" one for the city, and which has been read daily for 10 years, showed that 100 degrees in the shade was the maximum height attained yesterday.

The city fairly burned under the hot rays yesterday. Although the temperatures have been around 90 to 93 degrees for the past two weeks, the sudden jump to the century mark made travel exceedingly uncomfortable and a cool spot was hard to find. On Sunday the thermometer read 98 degrees, which was the high mark on July 4 last year.

The heat fell only to 70 degrees last night and at 11 o'clock this morning had risen to 93 degrees.

W. O. Brooks Taken Ill in Street and Dies in Few Minutes

While returning from the post-office Saturday night about 6:30 o'clock, William O. Brooks, 57 years old, a well-known resident of Murphys Siding, was taken ill suddenly and died before a physician arrived. One attending physician said that death was due to apoplexy and another gave the cause as heart trouble. Mr. Brooks was stricken just after he left the post-office, where he had gone to get a registered letter. He was picked up and carried into city hall but life was extinct when a physician arrived. He was apparently in his usual health when he left home Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Brooks was born in Saltlick township June 27, 1861, a son of Milton and Eliza Folgar Brooks. He married Miss Catherine Murphy, daughter of Squire and Mrs. A. Strawn Murphy. His widow, two daughters, Mrs. Grace Brooks Harckum of Murphys Siding and Miss Mildred K. Brooks; two sons, Ralph of South Connellsville and George Folgar Brooks, and one brother, S. C. Brooks of Somerset, survive. Mr. Brooks was a carpenter by trade.

The body was prepared by Funeral Director J. E. Sims and was removed to the Harckum home at Murphys Siding, where the funeral services were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, with the Junior Order of United American Mechanics in charge. Rev. Dr. B. W. Hutchinson of the First Methodist Episcopal church officiated. The interment was made in Hill Grove cemetery.

FUND OF $600 FOR FIREMEN RAISED AT DUNBAR ON FOURTH

Many Features Attend Celebration of National Holiday at the Furnace Town.

Decorated in gala dress, Dunbar held a real Fourth of July celebration yesterday, which was attended by hundreds of visitors and which netted the Dunbar firemen $600 to be used in the purchase of a chemical wagon.

One of the biggest features of the entire day was the parade that marked the opening of the program. The parade organized at the Dunbar Supply company store and went through the main streets to the ball park where the remainder of the program was carried out.

Led by the Connellsville Military band, the parade was composed of former service men, firemen with their apparatus, the Dunbar Italian lodge, the ball teams and floats.

Matthew J. Welsh, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of this city, made the principal address during the flag-raising exercises in the morning. Burgess Duncan was chairman at the ceremonies.

The Dunbar baseball team won both games of a double-header with Continental No. 3. The scores were 6-1 and 6-1.

Another feature were the pony races with William Herron riding the winning pony. A hundred persons joined in the greased pig race. Charles Hall captured the animal and was given it as a prize.

In the boxing show Billy Carter received the popular decision over Terrill Duncan of Uniontown. Both fighters were colored men. Welty and Copon fought to a draw as did Posque and Holt. Yetzy was the favorite over Lyons. A. J. Erhman was referee of the fights.

Connellsville Has Quiet Day On July Fourth

Aside from two ball games and the theatres there was little doing in Connellsville yesterday. Flags were hung from business places and private residences in celebration of the Fourth and many automobiles were trimmed in the national colors but aside from these demonstrations of patriotism there was little else doing. The usual fireworks were put off and there were also aerial pieces fired at night. No serious accidents were reported and no fires resulted.

The town was almost deserted and those who did remain at home suffered from the terrific heat, it being 100 degrees in the shade. Many attended the two ball games. Nearby parks were crowded and hundreds went to the mountains, both by automobile and on foot.

All day long the upper Yough river was filled with fishermen and bathers. The temperature was not so noticeable in the hills. Automobile travel on the highways was heavier yesterday than on many Sundays but only a few accidents occurred. An automobile caught fire and burned up on the National pike beyond the Summit.

SEVEN HUNDRED ATTEND BAPTIST CHURCH OUTING

Train of Four Coaches Required to Carry Local Picnickers.

GOOD SPORTS PROGRAM

Speakers of the Day Are D. M. Hertzog and D. W. McDonald of Uniontown, Rev. E. B. Stevens of Connellsville Church and Rev. Wortman.

Seven hundred persons from Connellsville attended the joint picnic of the First Baptist Sunday school of this city and Mill Run, held at the latter place yesterday. The local delegation was headed by the Leisenring band which furnished its services free for the outing. A special train carried the picnickers up the valley.

A meeting was held in the grove fronting the church at 11 o'clock in the morning and during the afternoon a sports program was carried out.

The morning program opened with the singing of "America," and the invocation by Rev. H. H. Stevens, pastor of the Connellsville church. Attorneys D. W. McDonald and D. M. Hertzog of Uniontown made addresses and Rev. F. S. Wortman of the Mill Run church and Rev. Stevens also spoke. William Percy, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced the afternoon program. The splendid way in which the Mill Run people entertained at dinner was the talk of the afternoon.

The baseball game between Connellsville and Mill Run ended in the third inning with the score 3-0 Connellsville after Catcher William Hall had been struck between the eyes with the ball. He had been catching without a mask and was knocked out for five minutes by the accident. Harry Long was pitcher.

Home-Made Cannon Menace To Life and Property in North End of the City

What might have been a more serious accident occurred last night as the result of a Fourth of July celebration being conducted on the old Sligo show grounds by a number of young men of that vicinity, when a home-made cannon exploded and scattered fragments in all directions.

The broken pieces were carried with great force and, some of them were of large size. A large section was carried a distance of about 150 yards through the air, and then it struck the roof on the home of Chester A. Gillespie at 811 Highland avenue.

Breaking through the slate covering the missile pierced the one-inch boarding, dropped into the attic, broke through the plastering on the ceiling of the bedroom beneath and lodged in a steel-bound trunk. The piece of cannon was turned over to the police. Had it struck anyone such as a serious injury would have resulted.

The explosion occurred just before Patrolman Humbertson arrived. The people residing in the neighborhood had complained to the police about the place, saying the force of the explosion was shaking windows and causing plaster to fall from ceilings. The officers do not know who was firing the cannon but are investigating the case.

Chief McDonald said there was little rowdyism over the Fourth, although some roughness developed. After dark last night several groups of men fired heavy crackers in the downtown streets, some of them being thrown around with reckless abandon, but no injuries resulted.

The police confiscated two cannon about two feet long yesterday. These were also taken in the North End. The police chief said they would not be returned.

Women Rout Burglar Who Enters Apartment by Way Fire Escape and Window

The apartment of Miss Marie E. Young on the third floor of the Turner building in West Crawford avenue was entered by a burglar Sunday morning about 1:30 o'clock. The intruder came up the fire escape and entered a bedroom window. In doing so he knocked over a small box. The noise awakened Miss Young and when she saw the man in her room and asked him what he wanted he made no reply, but moved toward her. Miss Young screamed and awoke Miss Louise Painter, who shares part of the apartment with Miss Young. When the man heard Miss Painter call to Miss Young he hurriedly left the room, going down the fire escape, which leads to the alley of the Soisson theatre.

The alley being well lighted Miss Young could plainly see the man. He wore neither hat nor coat and black hair and was of medium height. She believes she would be able to recognize him.

Nothing was missing from the apartment.

Guests at Sunday School.

Several members of the William F. Kurtz Post No. 104, Grand Army of the Republic, were guests of the First Baptist Sunday school Sunday morning at an invitation from the superintendent, S. B. Dull. The veterans assembled in a body just as the Sunday schools services were closing and the period up until time for the beginning of the regular morning church session was given over to them. Commander W. P. Clark of the post gave a talk on his Sunday school life from the time he was six or eight years old. He stated that he was the oldest Sunday school goer in the room for the reason that he had held the office of librarian in the First Methodist Episcopal Sunday school continuously for 51 years. In that time he had missed not more than two or three Sundays each year and when not present he always secured another member of the school to take his place. W. H. Shaw gave a poem on America as follows: America, America, we lift our battle cry—

To live for thee more than life, and more than death to die;
And by the blood our fathers gave, and by our God above,
And by a flag on every grave, we pledge our eternal love.

Colonel James J. Barnhart spoke on his Sunday school life from his boyhood days up to the present time. C. H. Whitney gave a reading, "Heaven Bless Our Native Flag." J. E. Jones spoke of his army life and of his enlistment when he was a boy. He also gave a war sketch. The veterans present were the speakers and A. R. Brashear.

Made a Hit With Him

"My wife has taken your medicine and has been wonderfully benefited. For over four years she has had trouble with bloating and could scarcely eat any food because of this condition. Doctor's medicines did not help her and an operation was advised. Her brother, who is druggist, sent her a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and it helped her at once. I cannot praise your medicine enough." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. A. A. Clarke and druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

Contempt.

"State why you believe the prisoner is insane," directed the learned judge.

"He always bets heavily on two pair in a poker game."

"Is a man insane when he bets on two pair?"

"In my opinion he is."

The judge's face grew purple. "Ten dollars," he roared, "for contempt of court."—American Legion Weekly.

A Heartrending Affair.

Movie Actress—The new cowboy tells me that you and he are not on friendly terms. He hinted you had trouble over an affair of the heart. Who was the lady, and what was the trouble?

Bill the Cowboy (grimly)—Well, if he's told you that much, reckon I can tell you the rest. The lady was the queen of hearts, and the trouble started when I caught him slipping her up his sleeve.—Film Fun.

Helping Him Out.

"Judge, be easy on me."

"Why should I be lenient?"

"Because a concatenation of unforeseen circumstances precipitated me into this deplorable predicament."

"Well, I'll do the best I can for you. You seem to have a liking for long words, so I will send you to a prison where there is a good library and you can learn a few more."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Wouldn't Be All at Sea.

"But suppose," they said to him, "this bill you are so keen about should cause your party to throw you overboard?"

"Well, in that case," the young politician responded, "I am quite sure I'd have strength enough to swim across to the other side."

An Appreciated Auditor.

"Your small boy asks you a great many puzzling questions."

"He does," rejoined Senator Sorghum. "But it's a relief to go home and listen to him. He always believes I am giving him the correct answers, which is more than I can say for my constituents."

Apricot organdy is the excuse for this frock—if an affair so charming needs an excuse. The scalloped skirt and edges of neck and sleeves are bound in self material. TOO ILL TO WORK

A Mother Tells How Her Daughter Was Made Well Again by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Philadelphia, Pa.—"At the age of sixteen my daughter was having trouble every month. She had bad pains across her back and in her sides, her back would pain her so that she could not do her work and would have to lie down. My married daughter recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She took it faithfully and is now regular and has no pain. We recommend the Vegetable Compound and give you permission to publish this letter."—Mrs. KATIE EICHER, 4034 N. Fairhill St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Standing all day, or sitting in cramped positions and often with wet feet, young girls contract deranged conditions, and before they are hardly aware of it they develop headaches, backache, irregularities, nervousness and bearing-down pains, all of which are symptoms of woman's ills. If every mother who has a daughter suffering from such symptoms would profit by the experience of Mrs. Eicher and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial she may expect the same happy result.

Wireless Telephone Flashes Fight News To Soisson Theatre

Details of the Dempsey-Carpentier battle were received at the Soisson theatre Saturday afternoon by wireless telephone, the first time that such a feat has been attempted here. The apparatus was installed by Charles H. Baisley, Earl Miller and Thomas W. Scott of Radio Station 8BJV, who have specialized in wireless apparatus. The bulletins were announced through the means of amplifiers located about the theatre, and every detail could be heard clearly.

The bulletins were dispatched through the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company from its station in East Pittsburg, the huge transmitter which sent its sound waves to all the Pittsburg district being connected directly with the ringside wireless telephone apparatus.

The receiver in Connellsville heard the Jersey City reader as clearly as over a regular telephone.

Manager C. A. Wegner has made a permanent wireless telephone installation at the Soisson theatre and expects to feature bulletins in the future.

TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 5, 1921.

LAW-OBSERVANCE MUST REPLACE LAW-BREAKING.

As a "monster demonstration against Prohibition" the parade of nullificationists in New York yesterday was somewhat of a fiasco. Instead of 200,000 marchers only 20,000 men, women and children, the majority of whom were of foreign birth, turned out in the sweltering heat and passed in review before Mayor Hylan. But as evidence of a concerted and organized attack upon the Constitution the parade should serve the purpose of rallying the loyal citizens to a defense of this sacred instrument.

The design of the parade was to give impetus to the campaign to elect a Congress favorable to a repeal of the Volstead Act. The originators of the demonostration evidently thought that by marshalling 200,000 or more paraders they would create the impression that they alone represented the sentiments of 100,000,000 people and, by appealing to ignoranace and prejudice, would enlist still other thousands in support of the movement to increase antagonism to the Constitution and create more disrespect for our laws.

This affair therefore becomes a challenge to every thoughtful citizen who is concerned about the future of our country. If the efforts of radicals of whatever kind to further mislead the ignorant citizenship and ignorant alienism are not counteracted by some means that will induce a more intelligent and correct appreciation of our system of government and the supremacy of the law, we cannot hope to escape the very serious consequences that will ensue.

While it is impudent for a few hundred thousand so-called citizens to assume that they represent the people on any issue, especially one involving any provision of the fundamental law, the fact that they give expression to a sentiment which is in opposition to the enforcement of the law, is the important thing to be considered. It is not enought to protest against all such demonstrations as that witnessed in New York on the nation's birthday by avowed enemies of representative government. It is but a step from such public displays of antagonism to enforcement of the prohibition law to similar or more violent opposition to all laws. To prevent a repetition is a task that calls for the complete codperation of all the forces for good citizenship in every section of the country where there have been evidences of a disregard of those things in our national life which make for the perpetuity of our institutions.

Law-observance must replace law-breaking wherever and by whomsoever practiced.

HAVE GAINED IN DIGNITY, HONOR AND LEADERSHIP.

The state of war which has existed between the United States and the "Imperial Government of Germany," and the "Imperial and Royal Austro-Hungarian Government," for almost three years since actual fighting ceased in the field, was terminated by a stroke of the pen when President Harding signed the joint resolution of Congress officially declaring that we are again at peace with these countries. All that remains to formally end the war is a proclamation of the President to that effect.

In thus restoring the peace status the United States has relinquished no right gained by our participancy in the war or by the terms and conditions of the Armistice under which hostilities were suspended. The resolution expressly reserves all these rights to the United States in terms so explicit that they cannot be misunderstood. Diplomatic relations can now be restored, but not with the governments with which we declared a state of war had existed.

These governments are no longer in being. As penalty for the offenses they committed against civilization they have crumbled to ruin. Wholly different types of government, more nearly representative of the people of the once great empires, now administer their affairs. With these the United States is at peace, as it is with every other nation on the earth. Having already resumed commercial relations, we have long been ready to assume the full relationships of friendly nations, and would have done so earlier except for the effort made to thrust the impractical League of Nations Covenant upon us as a means of making us subject to a super-government in Europe to which the advocates of this chimerical proposition would have had us surrender our constitutional rights.

Peace restores our independence and freedom of action which have been our outstanding characteristics as a nation, we have also retained our dignity and leadership. Unhampered by entangling alliances or burdensome commitments we can go forward with the magnificent mission which is ours to join with all nations in the work of rehabilitating the world. In the calm light of reason and a clear understanding of the needs we can negotiate treaties with our late enemies with the leisure so important a matter requires and without the sacrifice of a single right, privilege or function we would have bartered away had we yielded to the importunities of the visionaries who would have had us ratify the treaty of Versailles which had been inextricably intertwined with the League of Nations. By refusing to sell our national birthright for a mess of pottage we have lost nothing of dignity or honor but we have gained in both and have acquired a new importance in world leadership—an importance the whole world recognizes as being ours by every right and which will contribute materially to the future peace and prosperity of all nations.

MOTHER'S VACATION.

Out to the summer cottage Mother and Buddy went,
Out for a glad vacation, to stay till the heat was spent;
Mother was worn and weary, nervous
and needed a rest,
So to the lake we sent her, but never the tale we guessed.

Sunday we left her settled, with never a thing to do,
But the Watsons came on Tuesday to stay for a day or two;
Back to the grind went Mother, back to the same old game,
And as soon as the Watsons left her, four of the Bronsons came.

"We'll help with the work," they chortled, but Mother must bake the pies,
And Mother must cook their breakfast
ere ever her guests arise;
And while on the porch they chatted
and basked, in the wide outdoors,
It was Mother who washed the dishes,
and Mother who swept the floors.

Scarce had the Bronsons vanished,
when the Greens wrote in to say
They'd come for a few days' visit, now
Green had a holiday;
And the Greens and their young made merry and followed, their hearts' desire
While Mother, to get their victuals, stood over the kitchen fire.

It was then that I lost my temper.
"We'll close up the place," I said
"If you are to talk in boarders you can do it when I am dead!
No more of these week-end visits, it is home to the rocking chair,
And the porch and the climing roses—
you can get a vacation there."

Abe Martin

Well, anyhow, th' ole theory that whatever went up must come down has been exploded.

FILTRATION PLANT FOR MT. PLEASANT IS PUT INTO OPERATION

Supply of Water From Bridgeport Now Chemically Treated.

GREAT FOURTH OBSERVANCE

Parade, Baseball, Band Concerts and Fireworks Make Day One of Interest to All; Mangled Dog Bites Boy Who Attempts to Relieve Its Pain.

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, July 5.—On Saturday the Mount Pleasant Water Company began the installation of meters over the town, in compliance with notices sent out some time ago that after July 1 there would be an increase in water rates.

The filtration plant at Bridgeport has been put into commission.

The filtration plant was erected at a cost of $145,000. The function of this plant will be to remove all germs and turbidity from the water making it palatable and safe. It will remove 99 per cent of the bacteria.

All water entering the distribution system is treated in exactly the same manner, going through a four-hour treatment by chemicals and filtration.

After being treated with chemicals the water passes through the sand beds for filtration and the small qualities of sulphate of iron and caustic lime added to the water in the mixing chamber unite with the impurities of the water causing the whole to settle out in feathery flakes in the coagulating basin where it is washed away, allowing the pure water to pass through bright and clear.

The water company on Friday night was greatly inconvenienced by the breaking in the main line to the reservoir at Church street from the main reservoir at Bridgeport. It broke in nine places. All day Saturday and Sunday men worked on repairs.

School Board in Session.

The school board held a special meeting on Friday evening at which time, the bills for the year were paid and the year's business closed.

Suffering Dog Bites Boy.

On Sunday afternoon a French poodle belonging to Mrs. Lillian Greene was run over by an automobile on the hill on Main street. Not realizing that the dog was so badly hurt, Lloyd Greene, son of Mrs. Lillian Greene, made an effort to pull it from beneath the car and it bit him through both hands. The dog's neck was broken and died a few minutes later.

Fine Fourth Celebration.

The firemen-citizens celebration held here yesterday brought people by the thousands to town. The parade was not up to the parades of former years, but those who took part in it made an excellent showing. The airplane, belonging to Charles Carroll of Scottdale, gave three exhibitions, morning, afternoon and evening. In the morning an excellent game of ball was played between Ford City and the Czecho-Slovak team, the latter winning by a score of 6 to 5, while the Ford City team carried off the honors in the afternoon 2-0. The fireworks in the evening brought to an end a perfect day, one enjoyed by all. The concert given by the Bryce Brothers band showed that organization is coming to the front. The musicians wore their new khaki suits.

The Standard Fire department defeated the local department in the water battle.

I. O. O. F. Outing July 8.

The I. O. O. F. will have a picnic at Kennywood on July 8. The train will leave the Baltimore & Ohio depot here 7 o'clock sharp. Tickets are sold for children over six and under 12. Free amusement tickets are given to each child under 12 years of age.

Local People Like Tablets Better Than Yeast

TABLETS CONTAIN PROPER DOSE; EASY TO TAKE—RESULTS QUICK; DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND.

CHEMISTS CONCENTRATE DOSE INTO TINY TABLET

Many people are wisely eating Spinach, drinking milk and fruit juices every day to get the Vitamines so vital to health. Others are eating yeast—but now comes a tiny tablet which is easy to take. You get sixty of these tiny tablets in a bottle at any drug store. These "Phos-Pho Vitamine" Tablets contain a proper dose in highly concentrated form, of both Water and Fat Soluble Vitamines, etc. (See formula on bottle.)

For those not familiar with Vitamines, it can be said that Vitamines mean the difference between sickness and health. Vitamine is in many foods, but most of us do not get enough because we cannot scientifically balance our diet. In the Army and Navy boys grow fat, rosy, clear-skinned and vigorous in just a few weeks. Soon as they left the army and its scientifically balanced Vitamine diet, and started choosing their own foods, they grew weak, thin and pale. People in a half-sick, pale, thin, under-nourished condition report that as soon as they had taken these Phos-Pho Vitamine tablets three or four weeks they gained weight, strength, color, freedom from boils, pimples, carbuncles, etc., and a new buoyancy and vigor.

Magazines, medical journals, hospitals, doctors and chemists everywhere are recommending more Vitamines. Here is a powerful, easy to take, economical, tablet which produces results quick.

Visit the nearest drug store and procure a bottle of Phos-Pho Vitamine Tablets, or write and inclose $1, plus 4c war tax, to the Irving Laboratory, Wheeling, W. Va., for bottle prepaid. —Advertisement.

A delegation of 40 dokeys from this city went to Cumberland Friday where a new temple of the organization was instituted. The local dokey team was composed of members of the KaLaab Temple 212, of McKeesport, which is a branch of the Knights of Pythias.

A class of 150 took the degree at Cumberland and officers were installed. The ceremonies were in the form of an all day celebration ending with a banquet at night. The new organization of dokeys in the Maryland city is known as Wahaba Temple, D. O. K. K., No. 237.

JOKE RESTORES SPEECH

British Soldier, Unable to Talk, Finds Cure at Merry Party.

An extraordinary story of recovery of the power of speech by a dumb and paralyzed veteran comes from Boston, near Manchester, England.

Frank Kelly, who joined the Royal North Lancashire regiment at the beginning of the war, was returned from France in 1917. He had lost his speech entirely and both his legs were paralyzed. He was sent to the Lanhe Convalescent home, Boston.

He could communicate his thoughts only in writing.

Very recently he was taken in a wheeled chair to a party, which was very jolly, and where some most amusing stories were told. One of them threw Kelly into a paroxysm of laughter and, in the midst of it he suddenly exclaimed:

"Oh, that's a good 'un!"

Kelly told a newspaper reporter that while he was laughing a lump seemed to gather in his throat and burst, and to his amazement he found himself able to speak.

"I did not sleep that night for fear I should lose my voice," he said. "I was talking to myself all the night through."

His doctor was astounded at the apparent miracle. Kelly expressed the hope that by a similar miracle he will eventually be able to recover the use of his legs.

Mrs. Linda Harrod Endorses Chamberlain's Tablets.

"I suffered for years with stomach trouble and tried everything I heard of but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I say Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them from our druggist. I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness and pain in the stomach after eating. Since taking two bottles I can eat anything I want without distress," writes Mrs. Linda Harrod, Fort Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

Falling Off in Gambling Shown By Police Report

An indication that there is less activity among gambling joints and disorderly houses is shown in the mayor's report for the month of June in which police court receipts have fallen off to a large extent. The decrease in the number of arrests and amounts of fines is not due to any inactivity on the part of the officers, according to Chief Thomas McDonald, who says the places have been watched but there has been no grounds on which to make arrests.

There were 46 arrests during the month, 10 persons were discharged and one committed. Constables' prisoners totaled seven. Fines were paid by 28.

The amount received from fines totaled $210 and that from licenses amount to $24.50. The license tax amounted to $678. A total of $912.50 was paid into the city treasury.

ONCE UPON A TIME THERE WERE NO DOCTORS!

The Doctor Was Not Much Needed Until Folks Began to Break Nature's Laws.

Doctors Preach Prevention Is Better Than Cure.

Ninety per cent of all disease is preventable, so doctors say. Eat simple food, exercise wisely, sleep sufficiently, and—what is vitally important—make sure of the daily, regular, thorough elimination of body waste, and the chances are nine to one that you will keep well, work efficiently and enjoy life. Bowel elimination of food and tissue waste is all-important. But in case of irregularity, disordered or imperfect action do not make the common mistake of taking harsh, violently acting medicines, with the idea of forcing the bowels to act. Nature believes in mild methods. She responds best to persuasion.

So in selecting a simple remedy to regulate and assure proper bowel action, you should not use harsh or violently acting remedies, no matter how much has been claimed for them. You should choose some well-known, time tested, tried, proven remedy, that has made its reputation by being used for many years, by all sorts of people, all over the world. Take Beecham's Pills for example. Beecham's is a household word, has been for many generations. Beecham's Pills is a household remedy, has been for over half a century. People not only take Beecham's but recommend Beecham's to their friends. Their use is handed down from father to son or from mother to daughter, from one generation to another. Did you ever hear any complaint or criticism of Beecham's? Isn't that a pretty powerful endorsement of their worth? Druggists are glad to sell Beecham's.

PESKY BED BUGS

Bedbugs lay an average of seven eggs per day. Under favorable conditions they hatch in five days of which two-thirds are females. They mature to adult size and are capable of laying in four weeks. How many bedbugs would you have in a year if you left one female or egg unmolested for one year? To rid the pesky bedbug, you can readily see how necessary it is to use a preparation that will kill the eggs as well as the live ones. P. D. Q. has been demonstrated by the leading Hospitals, Hotels and Railroad Companies that the safest and most economical way to stop future generations of bedbugs, roaches, fleas and ants is to use the new discovery, Pesky Devils Quietus "P. D. Q."

A 35c package of P. D. Q. makes a quart, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, fleas and ants at the same time destroy their eggs.

Impossible for them to exist when P. D. Q. is properly used. Free, patent spoon in every package to get the pesky devils in the hard-to-get-at-places and save the juice.

Special Hospital and Hotel size $2.50—makes five gallons of P. D. Q.—your druggist has it or can get it for you, or sent prepaid upon receipt of price by the Owl Chemical Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Success of P. D. Q. has caused imitators; genuine P. D. Q. is never peddled.

Cokers and Whitney Divide Honors in Fourth Contests

The Connellsville Independents and Whitney divided a double-header yesterday at Fayette Field, the Cokers winning the morning game, 4-2, and the visitors scoring six runs in the afternoon while the locals were able to put one man across the plate.

The morning game was the better. A home run by Moser, the Independents' second sacker, was the feature of the clash which was much of a pitcher's battle between Hauser and Kozar.

Whitney won the afternoon game in the opening inning, scoring three runs. Connellsville got its lone run in the seventh. Catcher Jones was hit on the head by a ball thrown to catch him at first and dazed for a time.

Scores by innings:

COKERS WIN GAME FROM CAPSTAN GLASS

The Connellsville Independents hit Moorman freely on Saturday and defeated the Capstan Glass aggregation, 13-7.

When the crowd attending the boxing match at Slavish hall last night proved too small, the clash between Eddie Carror and Young Carmen, from Pittsburg and Charleroi respectively, was called off.

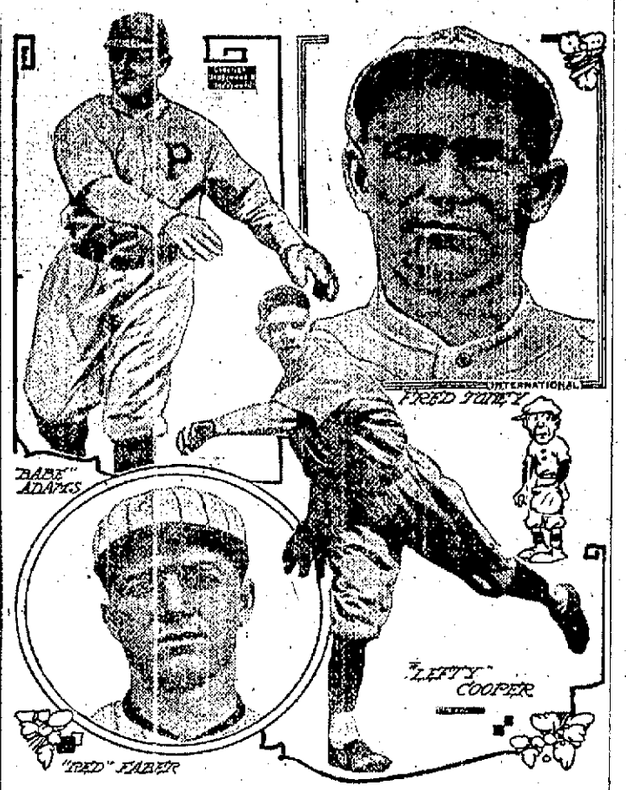
YOUNG UNSUNG PITCHING STARS EASILY ECLIPSING OLD-TIMERS



Old pitching bones have had a lot of tough going this season.

Youngsters, unknown and unsung, are slipping into the regal robes of the old kings of the mound.

"Lefty" Cooper, Fred Toney, "Babe" Adams and "Red" Faber are the only veterans showing anything close to their old form.

Alexander the Great is doing bench duty for the Chicago Cubs with a sore arm and Jim Vaughn, his big teammate, isn't delivering as expected.

Dutch Reuther, sensation of the 1919 pennant dash of the Cincinnati Reds, is a disappointment in Brooklyn and his old staff mate, Hod Eller, is out of the game under suspension.

Burleigh Grimes, Sherry Smith and in fact all of Uncle Rob's All-star pitching staff cracked and Brooklyn is falling down in the pennant race.

Ferdy Schupp and Bill Doak of the Cards are out of form. Scott Perry has fallen by the wayside with the Athletics. Bob Shawkey has been useless to the Yankees and Tris Speaker is having his trouble with his stars, Coveleskie, Bagby and Mails.

Arthur Nehf, the $35,000 beauty of the New York Giants, hasn't been as effective as Bill Ryan, a rookie pitcher from the International league.

Walter Johnson's work with the Washington Senators makes it seem that the old star is almost through. Joe Bush hasn't shown anything for the Boston Red Sox and George Dauss has done the Tigers very little good. Dick Rudolph had to give up after a brave effort and is now working with the Braves as a coach.

"Swat the fly" is the motto of other players besides Babe Ruth.

Connie Mack doesn't care how poorly a ball player goes so long as he tries.

There's is a difference between swinging at the ball and on the ball.

New York fans haven't given up the idea of a local world's series this fall.

Manager Jawn Evers sometimes leaves the field during playing hours —by request.

Rogers Hornsby gets more mileage out of the ball than Babe Ruth. He hits it oftener.

P. D. Hinkle, baseball coach at Butler college, has been signed by the Indianapolis A. A. club.

They ought to let pitchers work in a trench instead of on a mound. They have to duck a lot of drives.

Tommy Taylor, Birmingham infielder, is rated one of the best in the Southern league this year.

Long George Kelly is about ready to admit that Ruth still has something on him as a home-run manufacturer.

The Robins have signed Clyde McCarty, an infielder from the Okmulgee club of the Western association.

Pitcher Bill Doak of the St. Louis Cardinals had just got going when on Decoration day he cracked his arm again.

The Dodgers are playing good ball these days, regardless of what has been the previous comment of the experts.

Health Is Worth Saving, and Some Connellsville People Know How to Save It.

Many Connellsville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Ask your neighbor! Here is a Connellsville citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. John Morrison, 109 West Morton avenue, says: "Within the past three years I used Doan's Kidney Pills for an attack of backache and other symptoms of kidney disorder. I was bothered a great deal with pains soreness through them. In the morning my back was always stiff and my kidneys annoyed me by acting irregularly. I was troubled this way for some time when a neighbor recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me. Two boxes from Keagy's Drug Store entirely rid me of the trouble and I have never had a return of it."

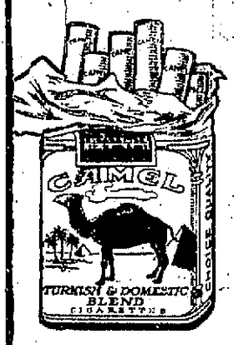
Here's why CAMELS are the quality cigarette



BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.

Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.

Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper —secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.

If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigaretty aftertaste,

It's Camels for you.

Do you prefer a "heavy" oil?

When buying "heavy" oil you naturally expect it to remain "heavy" under the operating conditions of the motor. Ask definitely for and you'll get a firm-bodied oil that can be relied on to keep the bearing surfaces apart under the severest pressure and the pistons sealed in the hottest-running motor.

Atlantic Heavy

Atlantic Heavy is refined with great care and precision. It is a filtered oil, remarkably free from carbon- and sediment-forming elements. Atlantic Heavy won't thin down materially under heat —its character is not appreciably changed in use, as is the case with inferior oils which appear "heavy" only at atmospheric temperature.

Search the entire motor oil market and you'll not find another oil more dependably "heavy" than Atlantic Heavy.

AUTHOR OF "THE SEATS OF THE MIGHTY" "THE RIGHT OF WAY"

COPYRIGHT BY SIR GILBERT PARKER

"The governor has been warned but he gives no heed, or treats it all lightly, pointing out how few the Maroons are He forgets that a few determined men can demoralize a whole state can fight and murder and fly to dark coverts in the tropical woods where they cannot be tracked down and destroyed, and, if they have made supporters of the slaves, what consequences may not follow!

"One thing is clear to me—only by hounds can these people be defeated So sure am I upon this point that I have sent to Cuba for sixty hounds, with which, when the trouble comes—and it is not far off—we shall be able to hunt the Maroons with the only weapon they really fear—the dog's sharp tooth. It may be the governor may intervene on the arrival of the dogs but I have made friends with the provost marshal general and some members of the Jamaica legislature, also I have a friend in the deputy of the provost marshal general in my parish of Clarendon here and I will make a good bet that the dogs will be let come into the island, governor or no governor

"When one sets one's self against the crown one must be sure of one's ground and fear no foe however great and high. Well, I have won so far, and I shall win in the end. Mallow should have some respect for one that beat him at Phoenix park with the sword, that beat him when he would have me imprisoned here that beat him in the matter of the ship for Haiti, and that will beat him on every hazard he sets unless he stoops to underhand acts which he will not do That much must be said for him

"But what is this I see? Michael Clones—in his white jean waistcoat white neckcloth and trousers and blue coat—is coming up the drive in hot haste, bearing a letter He rides too hard He has never carried himself easily in this climate. He treats it as if it was Ireland He will not protect himself and if penalty followed folly, should now be in his grave I like you, Michael, You are a boon, but—"

CHAPTER XIV.

Strangers Arrive

Dyck Calhoun's letter was never ended It was only a relic of the years spent in Jamaica only a sign of his well being though it gave no real picture of himself He was in appearance thin, dark favored, buoyant in manner and stern in face, with splendid eyes Had he dwelt on Olympus, he might have been summoned to judge and chastise the sons of men

When Michael Clones came to the doorway Dyck laid down his quill pen and eyed the flushed servant in disapproval

What is it, Michael? Wherefore this starkness? Is some one come from heaven?"

Not precisely from heaven, y'r honor but—

But—yes Michael! Have done with buffling and come to the real matter"

'Well sir they've come from Virginia'

Dyck Calhoun slowly got to his feet, his face paling his body stiffening From Virginia' Who should be coming from Virginia, save she to whom he had just been writing?

"Who has come from Virginia?"

He knew, but he wanted it said

"Sure you knew a vessel came from America last night Well in her was one that was called the queen of Ireland long ago"

Queen of Ireland—well, what then?" Dyck's voice was tuneless his manner rigid his eyes burning

"Well she—Miss Sheila Llyn and her mother are going to the Salem plantation, down by the Essex Valley mountain It is her plantation now It belonged to her uncle, Bryan Llyn He got it in payment of a debt. He's dead now and all his lands and wealth have come to her. Her mother, Mrs. Llyn, is with her and they start 'omorrow on the next day for Salem"

Dyck Calhoun made an impatient gesture at this last remark

"Yes yes, Michael, Where are they now?"

"They're at Charlotte Bedford's lodgings in Spanish town' The governor waited on them this morning The governor sent them flowers and—"

"Flowers—Lord Mallow sent them flowers! Hell's fiend, man, suppose he did?"

"There are better flowers here than any in Spanish Town."

"Well, take them, Michael; but if you do, come here again no more while you live, for I'll have none of you. Do you think I'm entering the lists against the king's governor?"

"You've done it before, sir, and there's no harm in doing it again One good turn deserves another I've also to tell you, sir, that Lord Mallow has asked them to stay at King's house."

"Lord Mallow has asked Americans to stay at King's house?'

"But they're Irish, and he knew them in Ireland, y'r honor."

"From whom do you get your information?" asked Dyck Calhoun with an air of suspicion.

"From Darius Boland, y'r honor," answered Michael, with a smile. "Who is Darius Boland, you're askin' in y'r mind? Well, he's the new manager come from the Llyn plantations in Virginia; and right good stuff he is, with a tongue that's as dry as cut wheat in August. I saw him this morning on the quay at Kingston He was ordering the porters about with an air—oh, bedad, an air! I saw the name upon the parcels—Miss Sheila Llyn of Moira Virginia, and so I spoke to him 'Well said he who might you be? For there's queer folks in Jamaica I'm told So I said I was Michael Clones and at that he doffed his hat and held out a hand 'Well, here's luck,' said he. 'Luck at the very start! I've heard of you from my mistress You're servant to Mr Dyck Calhoun—ain't that it?' And I nodded and he smiled again—a smile that'd cost money anywhere else than in Jamaica. Queer way of talk he has that man, as queer as—"

"I understand Michael But what else? How did you come to talk about the affairs of Mrs and Miss Llyn? He didn't just spit it out, did he?'

Sure, not so quick and free as spittin', y'r honor, but when he'd sorted me out, as it were, he said Miss Llyn had come out here to take charge of Salem, her own estate in Virginia being in such good runnin order and her mind bein' active Word had come of the trouble with the manager here and one of the provost marshal's deputies had written accounts of the flogging and ill-treatment of slaves and that's why she come—to put things right at Salem!"

"To put things wrong in Jamaica Michael, that's why she's come To loose the ball of confusion and free the flood of tragedy—that's why she's come! Man, Michael, you know her history—who she was and what happened to her father Well, do you think there's no tragedy in her coming here? I killed her father, they say Michael I was punished for it. I came here to be free of all those things—lifted out and away from them all I longed to forget the past, which is only shame and torture, and here it is all spread out at my door again like a mat which I must see as I go in and out There was no talk on Boland's part of their coming here, was there, Michael?'

"None at all, sir, but there was that in the man's eye and that in his tone which made me sure he thought Miss Llyn and you would meet."

"That would be strange, wouldn't it, in this immense continent! Dyck remarked cynically "She knew I was here before she came I wonder her mother let her come here Her mother knew part of the truth She hid it all from the girl—and now they are here!

"Michael order my horse and I will go to Spanish Town This matter must be brought to a head The truth must be told Order my horse!"

"It is the very heat of the day sir"

"Then at five o'clock, after dinner, have my horse here"

"Am I to ride with you sir?"

Dyck nodded

"Yes Michael There's only one thing to do—face all the facts with all the evidence, and you are fact and evidence too You know more of the truth than any one else,"

Several hours later, when the sun was abating its force a little after traveling the burning roads through jams and cocoa grenadillas and all kinds of herbs and roots and vagrant trees Dyck Calhoun and Michael Clones came into Spanish Town

Dyck looked around upon the town with new eyes He saw it like one for the first time visiting it He saw the people passing through the wide verandas of the houses like a vast colonnade, down the street to be happily sheltered from the fierce sun As they passed, King's house they saw troops of the viceroy's guests issuing from the palace—officers of the king's navy and army officers and men of the Jamaican militia, pale-faced big eyed men of the creole class mulattoes, quadroons and octoroons Samboes with their wives in loose skirts white stockings and pinnacle hats. Snatches of song were heard and voices of men who had had a full meal and had "taken observations"—as looking through the bottom of a glass of liquor was called by people with naval spirit—were mixed in careless carousal.

All this jarred on Dyck Calhoun and gave revolt to his senses. Yet he was only half-conscious of the great sensuousness of the scene as he passed through it. All was brought to focus at last, however, by their arrival at Charlotte Bedford's lodgings, which, like most houses in the town, had a lookout or belfry fitted with green blinds and a telescope, and had a green painted wooden railing round it

At the very entrance inside the gate, in the garden they saw Sheila Llyn, her mother and Darius Boland who seemed to be enduring from the mother some plainly reprimand to the amusement of the daughter

As the gate closed behind Dyck and Michael, the three from Virginia turned round and faced them As Dyck came forward, Sheila flushed and trembled She was no longer a young girl, but her slim straightness and the soft lines of her figure gave her a dignity and charm which made her young womanhood distinguished—for she was now twenty five and had a carriage of which a princess might have been proud Yet it was plain that the entrance of Dyck at this moment was disturbing. It was not what she had foreseen

She showed no hesitation however but came forward to meet her visitor while Michael fell back as also did Darius Boland Both these seemed to realize that the less they saw and heard the better, and they presently got together in another part of the garden, as Dyck Calhoun came near enough almost to touch Sheila

Surely he thought, she was supreme in appearance and design She was touched by a rose on each cheek and made womanly by firm and yet generous breasts tenderly imprisoned by the white chiffon of her blouse in which was one bright sprig of the buds of a cherry tree—a touch of modest luxuriance on a person sparsely ornamented It was Sheila herself whom time had enriched with far more than years and experience It was a personality which would anywhere have taken place and held it It was undefeatable, persistent and permanent, it was the spirit of Ireland loose in a world that was as far apart from Ireland as she was from her dead, dishonored father

And Dyck? At first she felt she must fly to him—yes in spite of the fact that he had suffered prison for manslaughter But a nearer look at him stopped the impulse at its birth Here was the Dyck Calhoun she had known in days gone by, but not the Dyck she had looked to see, for this man was like one who had come from a hanging, who had seen his dearest swinging at the end of a rope His face was set in coldness his hair was streaked with gray, his forehead had a line in the middle his manner was rigid, almost frigid indeed Only in his eyes was there that which denied all that his face and manner said—a hungry absorbing hopeless look the look of one who searches for a friend in the denying desert.

Somehow when he bowed low to her and looked her in the eyes as no one in all her life had ever done, she had an almost agonized understanding of what a man feels who has been imprisoned—that he is never the same again He was an ex convict and yet she did not feel repelled by him She did not believe he had killed Erris Boyne As for the later crime of mutiny that did not concern her much She was Irish but more than that, she was in sympathy with the mutineers She understood why Dyck Calhoun, enlisting as a common sailor, should take up their cause and run risk to advance it That he had advanced it was known to all the world, that he had paid the price of his mutiny by saving the king's navy with a stolen ship and that he had won wealth was but another proof of the man's power

You would not come to America, so I came here and— She paused, her voice trembling slightly

"There is much to do at Salem" he added calmly, and yet with his heart beating as it had not beaten since the day he had first met her at Playmore

'You wouldn't take the money I sent to Dublin for you—the gift of a believing friend and you would not come to America!

'I shall have to tell you why one day' he answered slowly but I'll pay my respects to your mother now

So saying he went forward and bowed low to Mrs Llyn Unlike her daughter, Mrs Llyn did not offer her hand She was pale, distraught, troubled—and vexed She however, murmured his name and bowed

"You did not expect to see me here in Jamaica" he said boldly

'Frankly I did not Mr Calhoun' she said

'You resent my coming here to see you? You think it bold at least

She looked at him closely and firmly You know why I cannot welcome you"

Yet I have paid the account demanded by the law And you had no regard for him You divorced him"

Sheila had drawn near and Dyck made a gesture in her direction She does not know," he said, 'and she should not hear what we say now

Mrs Llyn nodded, and in a low tone told Sheila that she wished to be alone with Dyck for a little while In Dyck's eyes as he watched Sheila go, was a thing deeper than he had ever known or shown before In her white gown and with her light step Sheila seemed to float away—a picture graceful stately, buoyant, "keen and small" As she was about to pass beyond a clump of pimento bushes, she turned her head toward the two and there was that in her eyes which few ever see and seeing are afterward the same It was a look of inquiry of revelation of emotion which went to Dyck's heart

'No she does not know the truth" Mrs Llyn said 'But it has been hard hiding it from her One never knew whether some chance remark, some allusion in the papers would tell her you had killed her father

'Did I kill her father?' asked Dyck helplessly 'Did I? I was found guilty of it but on my honor, Mrs Llyn, I do not know and I do not think I did I have no memory of it We quarrelled I drew my sword on him, then he made an explanation and I madly, stupidly drank drugged wine In reconciliation with him and then I remember nothing more—nothing at all"

"What was the cause of your quarrel?'

Dyck looked at her [illegible] swering 'I hid that from my father even, and hid it from the world—did not even mention it in court at the trial If I had, perhaps I should not have gone to jail If I had perhaps I should not be here in Jamaica, If I had— He paused, a flood of reflection drowning his face making his eyes shine with black sorrow

'Well if you had! Why did you not? Wasn't it your duty to save yourself and save your friends if you could? Wasn't that your plain duty?'

Yes and that was why I did not tell what the quarrel was If I had even had I killed Erris Boyne the jury would not have convicted me Of that I am sure It was a loyalist jury"

"Then why did you not?

"Isn't it strange that now after all these years, when I have settled the account with judge and jury with state and law—that now I feel I must tell you the truth? Madam, your ex-husband, Erris Boyne was a traitor He was an officer in the French army and he offered to make me an officer also and pay me well in French government money, if I would break allegiance and serve the French cause—Ah, don't start! He knew I was on my last legs financially He knew I had acquaintance with young rebel leaders like Emmet, and he felt I could be won So he made his proposal Because of your daughter I held my peace for she could bear it less than you I did not tell the cause of the quarrel If I had, there would have been for her the double shame That was why I held my peace—a fool but so it was!'

The woman seemed almost robbed of understanding His story overwhelmed her Yet what the man had done was so quixotic, so Celtic, that her senses were almost paralyzed

"So mad—so mad and bad and wild you were she said "Could you not see it was your duty to tell all no matter what the consequences? The man was a villain But what madness you were guilty of, what cruel madness! Only you could have done a thing like that Erris Boyne deserved death—I care not who killed him—you or another He deserved death and it was right he should die But that you should kill him, apart from all else—why indeed oh indeed it is a tragedy for you loved my daughter and the killing made a gulf between you! There could be no marriage in such a case She could not bear it, nor could you But please know this Mr Calhoun that she never believed you killed Erris Boyne She has said so again and again You are the only man who has ever touched her mind or her senses though many have sought her Wherever she goes men try to win her, but she has no thought for any Her mind goes back to you Just when you entered the garden I learned—and only then—that you were here She hid it from me but Darius Boland knew and he had seen your man, Michael Clones and she had then made him tell me I was incensed I was her mother and yet she had hid the thing from me I thought she came to this island for the sake of Salem and I found that she came not for Salem but for you . . . Ah, Mr Calhoun she deserves what you did to save her but you should not have done it

She deserves all that any better man might do Why don't you marry her to some great man in your republic? It would settle my trouble for me and free her mind from anxiety Mrs Llyn we are not children, you and I You know life, and so do I, and——'

She interrupted him "Be sure of this Mr Calhoun she knows life even better than either of us She is and has always been a girl of sense and judgment When she was a child she was my master, even in Ireland Yet she was obedient and faithful and kept her head in all vexed things She will have her way and she will have it as she wants it and in no other manner She is one of the world's great women She is unique Child as she is she still understands all that men do and does it

"Lord Mallow—He Courts Her, Does He?"

"Why does she not marry? Is there no man she can bear? She could have the highest, that's sure

He spoke with passion and insistence If she were married his trouble would be over The worst would have come to him—like death He had the look of a lost angel one who fell with Belial in the first days of sin

There is no man she can bear—except here in Jamaica It is no use Your governor, Lord Mallow whom she knew in Ireland who is distant kin of mine he has already made advances here to her, as he did in Ireland—you did not know that She is rich and he would be glad of an estate that brings in scores of thousands of pounds yearly He has asked us to stay at King's house but we have declined We start for Salem in a few hours She wants her hand on the wheel'

LIGHTS PATHS OF WAR'S BLIND

Institution in Paris Supported by American Contributors.

INMATES ARE TAUGHT TRADES

Equips Sightless Soldiers to Go Back to Many Kinds of Business—Courses Include Commercial Training, Massage, Music, Knitting, Weaving, Bookbinding, Printing Braille Type for the Blind and Modeling—Success for Craftsmen

Passersby sauntering along the Rue Duru Paris often pause for a moment before an old house listen smile perhaps wistfully, then continue their promenade with faces a little saddened What they have heard echoing down the quiet Paris street and above the hedge of the old house are the voices of the blind pollus in their garden who now that warm weather has come take their work out of doors and sing as they work

They are the men who are learning trades at the Phare de France 14 Rue Duru They are of all ranks and ages alike in one respect that they were all blinded in battle in the service of France

The Phare de France or French Lighthouse where fifty seven of these men now live while they learn their trade is an American institution founded by American women and supported by voluntary contributions from the United States Unlike many other institutions founded during the war the Phare still continues unceasingly its work among the war blind who are daily being discharged from the hospitals and returned to their homes

To Help Blind to Work

The object of the work here under the direction of Mlle Jeanne de Villedon is to equip a blinded man to go back into business again and compete with the sighted workman Experience with hundreds of war blinded has proved that this can be done Courses offered to the men here include commercial training massage, music knitting, weaving bookbinding printing Braille type for the blind and modelling Every pupil before specializing in anything is required to learn how to read the raised Braille type and how to typewrite All instruction is absolutely free and while they are learning the men are boarded at the Phare without charge

It was through the efforts of Miss Winifred Holt founder of the New York Lighthouse for the Blind that this school for France's blinded war heroes opened its doors as early as 1916 Since that time the demand for its services has been steadily increasing and the results of the training which hundreds of men have received there are shown by the fact that almost all its graduates have returned home self supporting self respecting citizens

Success for Craftsmen

One man now a graduate of the Phare, was discovered in a hospital by Miss Holt, blind and half insane Today he is a self reliant craftsman, director of a small knitting plant with forty employees The printing plant of the Phare in addition to giving employment to blind printers, performs the important task of publishing French and English magazines for the blind and in one year produced 8,000 books in the Braille type

The Committee for Lighthouses for the Blind is now carrying on a campaign for $2,000,000 to extend the work of the lighthouses which have been established by Miss Holt in the United States Italy and France for the relief, education and recreation of the blind. President Harding is honorary chairman of the campaign and Andrew W. Mellon is honorary treasurer The active chairman is Franklin D Roosevelt and all contributions to the fund can be sent to the treasurer Lewis L. Clarke at the American headquarters, 111 East Fifty ninth street, New York city

RIBBON HAS PART TO PLAY

Ribbon plays an important part in one's costume this season—and an attractive fashion is to have girdle and hat band of some gay brocaded or vividly striped silk.

ORIENTAL DESIGNS IN SILKS

Patterns Representing Sphynx, Egyptian Heads, Vultures; Satins and Taffetas Attractive.

The patterns in the new oriental silk dress goods are odd and daring, representing large designs of the Sphynx, Egyptian heads, vultures, with hieroglyphical signs in a long shaped medallion in bright colors on a natural shantung silk ground, the typical Egyptian vulture wing and other fantastic designs.

The Persian designs are of a complicated variety, mostly with a trellis background in reds with yellow rampant leopards or trelliswork designs in blues, white and blacks. Other designs show green leopards and red and yellow birds in various color schemes.

A number of Chinese designs are seen in shantung silk in natural color and such shades as old rose. These are mostly printed with Chinese script in bright contrasting colors. A few shantung silks in their natural color are ornamented with large conventional flowers with black petals and green, white and orange or deep red, white and blue combinations. A large sunflower design appears among this collection.

A variety of medallion designs is seen among the black taffetas, and brightly colored landscapes, together with pagodas with bright red roofs, and elephants embroidered in maroon with red trappings.

Among the black and dark blue satins some large conventional fruit and flower designs in medallions are shown in softer toned colors. A bright embroidered dragonfly design on black soft satin is very effective. On a silk crepe there is a striking design representing a wide-spreading tree in black, inserted in a medallion on a ground of light tango.

Among the taffetas are broad plaids and stripes in graduated shades of orange on black; blue on black and other striking combinations.

FASHION NOTES

Tea and coffee shades are rivaling gray.

Many tailormades worn these days have no belt.

Burnt orange and honeydew are the leading shades.

Crenonne and gingham parasols are offered this summer.

High collars and lacy jabots will be worn with severely cut tweed suits.

Tailored suits are more popular this season than they have been since the war.

Sailor hats plainly banded, or wound around the crown with crepe, are much worn.

Gray silk lace is used, not only for dinner and afternoon gowns, but for ruffled blouses.

Soft, supple silks, particularly crepes, have a great place in spring and summer fashion affairs.

It is reported that organdie will be as much in favor this summer as last. Organdie hats will also be very popular.

Attractive little ruffled aprons, with hats to match, are being worn by bride maids, as well as at teas this spring.

Several smart hats have a high-back trimming, which simulate Spanish combs. These are often made of lace or plaited mallines.

Mushroom brims have been rather out of the running; but the short back [illegible] and lowered

"After Your Child's Bath

Mothers Should Use Sykes Comfort Powder," says Nurse Soper

Peekskill, N. Y.—"I am sending you the picture of a dear little boy on whom I have used Sykes Comfort Powder with wonderful results. In my work as a nurse I have never found any powder so soothing and healing.

When used daily after a baby's bath it keeps the skin free from chafing, rash se, scalding and soreness. There is nothing like it."—Mrs. Sadie A. Soper, Nurse, Peekskill, N. Y.

The reason Sykes Comfort Powder is successful in such cases is because it contains six healing, antiseptic ingredients not found in ordinary talcums.

RULED BY THINGS MATERIAL

Writer Asserts That Americans Are Behind Rest of World in Intellectual Progress.

It is, I think, true to say that the material progress of America has enormously surpassed the intellectual progress, writes St. John Ervine in the Century magazine. That is why a European, visiting the United States, is disconcerted to find men of immense power in business talking like children in an elementary school about literature and art.

It was this absorption in material things which, though it has made American domestic life easily the most comfortable in the world, left America a good deal at the mercy of the old and ravenous diplomats of Europe in the peace conference. Culture, given by contemplation of art and literature, is the power to know and understand human nature and motives. Centuries of familiarity with the garnered beauty and learning of the world have gone to the making of the European statesman, but only a generation or two of intimate knowledge of great businesses and the machinery had gone to the making of the American delegation.

The great expanse of America, the fact that its resources are still undeveloped, and that fortunes seem very easily to be made by men whose wits are both agile and accommodating, make the reappearance of its high general culture difficult. The standards of America are constantly being displaced by the irruption of newly enriched men, who pass from poverty to affluence so rapidly that while they have the means for a life of culture, they have not the mentality for it.

WIND SCATTERED HIS WARES

Toy-Balloon Merchant Might Have Been Excused If He Made a Few Warm Remarks.

A toy-balloon merchant, all but hidden under a fantastic, dancing cluster of brilliant wares, was making his way northward in Meridian street, when he met a foe in the form of an April wind. The man emerged from the protection of the Board of Trade building and started on the run across Ohio street, when the coy spring zephyr reached forth and plucked a handful of the varicolored merchandise.

Strange red, green, yellow and blue bubbles, like bits of whimsical clouds, went bounding and sailing eastward along Ohio street, much to the amazement of distressed patients sitting in dentists' chairs before windows in the Hume-Mansur building. Pedestrians gazed aloft and gasped. Then came a scramble, in which for the most part little boys and girls were victorious. Soon the stray balloons were led captive away, while the balloon merchant continued onward along Meridian street, holding converse with himself. It is not recorded what he said.—Indianapolis News.

"Golf Spine" the Latest.

The "golf spine" is the latest of income producers for the doctors, according to Dr. Homer E. Bailey, who was the principal speaker at a meeting of the St. Louis Osteopathic association. It is a result, he said, of putting too much "pep" into the game.

There are two forms of the trouble, the doctor said. One results from swinging too hard at the ball while the player is standing in an upright position.

The other results from a swing while the player is leaning forward. In the first instance there is a dislocation of the vertebrae at the base of the neck and in the other at the small of the back. In the first instance, the player suffers from pains similar to rheumatic pains in the right shoulder and in the second instance the pains are in the back.—Kansas City Star.

Fills a Long-Felt Want.

It would seem that all there was left to be invented in the tomato line would be a worthless one, but this year two distinct novelties are offered, the most striking of which is a white tomato. It is the counterpart in all respects of the ordinary tomato, except its color, which is a brilliant cream white. John Baer seems the most striking of the new red varieties because of the profusion of its yield and the uniformity of the fruits, which are of the round, salad variety. It is not quite so early as Earliana, but a much heavier bearer. It will be found a winner.

Making Americans.

A new feature of the Americanization movement, local "citizens' clubs," is making progress among the Ukranian immigrants in this country. They are being organized by American citizens of Ukranian origin, to bring their fellow countrymen into closer co-operation with the rest of the American people. Several clubs of this type have been in existence for a long time, but recently the idea has spread and citizens' clubs in Boston, Mass., and Providence, R. I., have been added within the last few weeks.

Our Share.

We can't all smoke high-priced cigars
Or own a limousine,
But we can all collect the bands
And smell the gasoline.

POOR BUT PROUD.

"Your new pianist didn't stay long."

"I had to let him go," said the manager. "As apt as not he'd be playing a jazz selection when people were dying on the screen. He wouldn't pay any attention to the plot of a photoplay."

"Didn't he offer an explanation?"

"Oh, yes. He said circumstances compelled him to accept employment in a movie house, but he would be blamed if he'd prostitute his intellect by looking at the pictures."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

That's Different.

Bacon—You're looking fine, old man; what have you been doing?

Egbert—I've given up coffee—

"Good! I told you long ago you should give it up. There's a reason, you know."

"Well, you see, every time I ate coffee"—

"Oh say now; nobody eats coffee."

"I say, whenever I ate coffee-cake it gave me indigestion, so I gave up eating it."

Knew What He Was Doing.

Photoplay Writer—But, look here! This character is supposed to be a very homely man, and you have cast for that part the handsomest man in your company.

Director—Oh, he'll be homely enough when the cameraman and the developer get through with him. You see, he's engaged to the star, and both those boys are in love with her.—Film Fun.

A FINANCIAL STRINGENCY

Visiting Statesman: You seem to be suffering a shortage of currency. How do you account for it?

Comrade Ivan Offulitch: Industrial unrest. The counterfeiters of soviet money have gone on strike and demand a daily wage in gold.

Useful Knocking.

We would have less wordy clatter
And more roofs to shield our domes
If the fellow with the hammer
Used it in constructing homes.

She Is Amused.

"Now you know that you, a jazz baby, never intend to marry a college professor."

"Maybe not."

"Then why let him make love to you?"

"Aw, it's such fun to hear a college professor converse in gurgles."

Not the Kind for Present Crisis.

"No," said old Mr. Subbubs, "I can't say that I approve of your match with that city young man."

"But, father, he has such a fine genealogical tree."

"What good is that? If it was pine or hickory we might burn it, seein' we can't get any coal."

Precocious.

Flatbush—Do you know when a baby begins to think?

Bensonhurst—Why, sure.

Flatbush—Well, when?

Bensonhurst—Mine began to think that I ought to walk the floor with him the first week he arrived in the house.

Might Help.

"Was Shakespeare a poacher?"

"I don't care whether that story is true or not," said the erudite person "but if it is true it's a pity some of our contemporary dramatists can't take a preliminary course in deer stealing."

Prospects Good.

"Here's a gent writes our mail-order house for a wife."

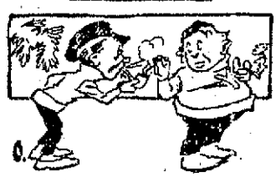
"Can we fill that order?"

"I think so. One of our young lady clerks has started a coy correspondence with him."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Real Temptations.

"George Washington was a truthful man."

"As far as he got. But no interviewer ever asked him to make a public statement about his golf score or the number of fish he caught."



ACCOUNTED FOR

1st Student: I understand that there is a great deal of kicking on the professors in regard to the compensation they receive.

2nd Student: Aw! They're only mad 'cause they can't write home to their old man for more money.

The Differentiation.

"What's the difference between a farmer and a landed proprietor?" asked Mrs. Corntassel.

"A farmer," replied her husband, "is a man with a hoe and a landed proprietor is a man with a golf club."

Rights!

Young Multirox—I'll never forget the time I proposed to you.

Miss Moinchance—Rights, old dear! I don't intend to let you forget it.

Literally So.

Edith—You say his attentions to you have been marked.

Maud—Yes; he has never taken the price tag off his presents.

Lingerie.

Some of the latest materials used in lingerie are pussywillow taffeta and canton crepes. Initialed lingerie is the thing nowadays and some of the makers are giving their customers the choice of elaborate monograms.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

The number of people who are cutting down on sweets from a standpoint of health is on the increase. Where acid fruits are also tabooed the prune will have its chance to be developed. The prune is a very wholesome foundation for any number of delectable dishes from breakfast to dinner.

Sliced Pressed Beef.—Take a shin of beef and two pounds of the round. Crack the bone, put the meat into a kettle, cover with cold water and bring to a boil. Add salt and pepper, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, a large onion sliced and cook all together until the meat falls from the bones. Skim out the meat and bone and reduce the liquor by boiling; when one-half the quantity, strain through a coarse muslin. Pick the meat into small bits, removing all bones. To the meat liquor add a pinch of powdered mace, cloves, allspice, a dash of cayenne and one-half teaspoonful of mustard, and the same of celery salt. Boil the liquor and put back the meat, mixing thoroughly. When well heated through, turn into an earthen bowl or mold rinsed in cold water; cover and weight the cover and set away to cool. Serve cut in thin slices.

Simple Dessert.—Butter slices of bread and place in a baking dish, cover with canned blueberries, place another layer of buttered bread and pour over more blueberries. Cover and wait for an hour or two, then bake until well heated through. Serve with cream and sugar. Other berries, such as blackberries, strawberries or any juicy fruit may be used in place of the blueberries.

Fruit Pudding of Leftovers.—Take one-half cupful of oatmeal, one egg, beating yolk and white separately; a pinch of salt, two teaspoonfuls of butter, six prunes stoned and mashed smooth, two tablespoonfuls of baked apple, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, a little nutmeg, one-half cupful of sweet milk. Mix all the ingredients except the egg white and bake in a moderate oven. When firm and brown, cover with a meringue, using two tablespoonfuls of sugar and the egg white. Brown and serve.

GOWNS FASHIONED AT HOME

Graceful Negligees or Hostess Robes Are Easily Constructed by the Family Dressmaker.

The simple yet graceful negligees or hostess gowns which in their straight clinging lines hark back to the days of the Italian Renaissance are easily fashioned by the home dressmaker.

Such a garment with its long side sleeves, which are open to the hem, may be cut from three yards of any 40-inch material. Fold the cloth in the middle, cutting out a rounding neck opening which may be slit out on the shoulders and fastened with quaint Chinese buttons and loops. Line the material, if it be velvet, with a contrasting shade of georgette or chiffon.

Cut a slit at each side of the front and back, through which to pass a heavy silk cord, and finish the four corners with tassels of silk. The edge may be finished with a jet beading, while the slits at the sides through which the cord passes may be picoted.

Dressy Satin Suits.

Very feminine and dressy are the new satin tailored suits. A chic one is made of dark-blue satin. The skirt is rather short and narrow, save for a few gathers on the sides. The box coat opens over a gilet of ecru filet lace. This same lace is seen at the edges of the three-quarters sleeves. The lower part of the coat, the entire sleeves, the collar are heavily padded and worked in intricate machine-stitched patterns. This is called "matelasse." This garniture has been exceedingly popular in Paris and is seen on many tailleur couturiers.

CATCHES BIG CARP

Made What Is Believed to Be a Local Record.

Samuel Fitzwater of Delaware City, Del., made what is believed to be a local record in catching carp the other day, when he landed one fish that tipped the scales at twenty-five pounds and his entire catch totaled 180 pounds. The presence of so many fish in the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal is attracting scores of fishermen daily and some splendid catches of fish are reported.

Significant Brevities.

"I suppose you are prepared to deliver some great speeches."

"Not long ones," replied Senator Sorghum. "One word may decide the future of a man in my position. Everything depends on whether you know just when to say 'Aye' and when to say 'No.'"

English Women a Justice.

Lady Caroline Petre, of Ingatestone hall, who has just been made a justice of the peace, is a member of one of the oldest Catholic families in England. The head of the house is Lord Petre, who is six years old. One of his great aunts is superior of the sisters of charity at Westminster and another is a member of the Good Shepherd community at Hammersmith.
